

A Business Life After the Golden Rule: Memorial of William Avery Miner, 1861-1920, With Introductory Sketch of the Miner Family (Classic Reprint)

Allen County Public library Ft. Wayne, Indiana FOREWORD Observance of the Golden Rule is conceded to be the supreme need and duty in all the relations of life. In the business world it would solve the questions now agitating both the old and new world. If it only could be observed But can it not be? Is it true that to observe it, is to invite failure? Is competition always the life of business? May it not be a business killer? Is to beat the other fellow, always a worthy incentive? The reader is invited to a careful perusal of the Memorial of William A. Miner as showing some of the results of an honest attempt to observe this law as a business man. It is the hope of the writer of this simple story that it may help to show the possibility and wisdom of making this the supreme law of life and thus hasten the day of its universal observance. H. A. Miner. Madison, Wis., Nov. 1st. 1921. About the Publisher Forgotten Books is a publisher of historical writings, such as: Philosophy, Classics, Science, Religion, History, Folklore and Mythology.
