

Minutes in Agriculture and Planting, 1804 (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Minutes in Agriculture and Planting, 1804
The numerous applications made to me by a variety of Graziers, for my opinion concerning the best artificial and natural grass seeds, For laying down land to pasture, &c. induced me to undertake the part of this work which relates to grasses. And the loss sustained by Farmers, from the best implements of husbandry in one county being scarcely known in another, induced me to undertake the mechanical part; in which, they are made acquainted with the construction and use of several practical machines, little known in general; and are thereby enabled to reduce the manual labour and expence attending many of the operations in Husbandry. Perhaps a great part of this work, so far as it relates to Grasses, will be new to many among my readers.
