

Seed & Bread Vol. I: One Hundred Studies in Positive Biblical Theology

Otis Q. Sellers, who wrote the studies that appear in these books, Seed and Bread, Volume One and Volume Two, died on February 23, 1992. He was a believer in and a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ for over seventy-three years. During those years he was an assiduous student. His business in life was the study and the proclamation of the Word of God. This proclamation was made by means of radio broadcasts, audio tapes, and the writing and free distribution of Bible-study literature. All of these still serve a multitude of Bible students world-wide. As a personal student of Gods written Word, he came to his own conclusions after considering all Biblical material available and any extraneous material that might shed light on the subject under consideration. He sought to study each word in order to bring forth its exact historical and grammatical meaning. Constant study forced him to continually alter some of his former beliefs and he asked that all readers take his latest writings to be his latest light. In 1971 he began to condense his understanding of some of the great subjects of the Bible into short, four-page easy-to-read Bible-study leaflets under the title of Seed & Bread. These found an immediate and wide-spread acceptance. It is these studies that make up the chapters of Seed and Bread, Volume One and Volume Two.
