

Unrealistic Expectations

If only...my parents had really loved me...; I had a best friend...; I could find my prince and marry him...; I could be the perfect mother of the perfect child...; I had the right job...THEN I could be happy. In UNREALISTIC EXPECTATIONS, author Barbara Minar encourages women to let go of their if onlys. She explains that nothing on this earth will completely meet our needs and fill up the empty hole within us. Only God can do that. She writes: If we can only take joy in Him, we can find that peace that passes human understanding. Our deep emptiness will be filled up with God. No longer will we try to fill our unrelenting needs through parents, friends, lovers, husbands, children, jobs, money, things, organizations, or even ourselves. Learn with Barbara Minar as you read about her journey toward freedom from unrealistic expectations and the depression they bring.
